If the Supplier does not immediately remedy a defect at the Purchaser's request, the latter may replace or repair the defective product at the Supplier's cost, if necessary, in order to guarantee the continuity of its production process (or that of its customers). In these cases, any costs incurred in this replacement/repair will be invoiced to the Supplier and may be set off against any sum due to the Supplier. In the event of a set-off, the Supplier may ascertain the authenticity of the Purchaser's claim for a period of ten (10) days, before making the set-off.

Furthermore, the Supplier will pay for any additional costs that arise from or are related to remedying the defects, including but not limited to, repair or replacement, transportation, assembly and dismantling costs, administrative costs and handling expenses, as well as any other costs related to remedying the defect (its own costs, the Purchaser's costs, and those of the Original Equipment Manufacturer (OEM)).

Any delay in compliance, defective compliance or failure to fulfil the obligations under the Purchase Order or any contractual agreement by either party will be excused to the extent that the Supplier is unable to produce, sell or deliver, or the Purchaser is unable to accept, buy or use, the goods or services covered by the Purchase Order, directly as a result of an event or occurrence could not have been foreseen or if it could have been foreseen was unavoidable, including, government orders, fires, floods, windstorms, explosions, natural disasters, war, sabotage or acts of terrorism; provided that written notice of such force majeure event (including the anticipated duration of the delay) has been given by the affected party to the other party as soon as possible but not more than one full business day after the force majeure event occurs.

The Supplier commits itself to use all available means to ensure that the harmful effects of any force majeure event are kept to a minimum for the Purchaser and, as promptly as possible, resume full performance under this contract. To this effect, the Purchaser may request the Supplier in writing the commitment to resume the contractual relationship within 30 days. Failing that or, if required, the Supplier does not reply by the same means of communication within five days, the Purchaser may immediately terminate the Purchase Order without liability to the Purchaser and with no compensation right for Supplier.
